Recommendation to Exchange Personnel
with ODP on Rotational Basis

1. Attached is a job description for a teleprocessing engineer, GS-12, to work in ODP on a 2 or 3 year rotational assignment. This would be ODP's position in the exchange of personnel with your office as proposed in reference b. Your position description was sent to us in reference a. We are pleased to nominate [REDACTED] for this position. He can begin working in OC on 1 May 1979.

2. We are flexible on the date for filling the rotational position in our Engineering Division, but naturally we are anxious to have a Commo engineer as soon as possible to help manage our data communications network. Now is an especially propitious time, as we begin the development, acquisition, and installation cycle for the Agency's new standard soft copy computer terminal. If the engineer you assign to ODP has interests and skills in this area, he could play a major role in the introduction of this terminal into CIA.

3. If you need further information on ODP's Systems Analyst nominee for assignment to your office, please con-

Danny:

We are currently in the middle of a reorganization that will realign a number of functional and career responsibilities within OC. For this reason, it might be better to hold off on developing rotational assignments of personnel between our offices until next fall. At that time we can appoint a joint OC/ODP planning group to work out the details.
